

Joana Ramos has a bachelor degree in Political Science and International Relations and a master degree in Governance, Leadership and Democracy Studies by the Instituto de Estudos Políticos of the Universidade Católica Portuguesa, with special focus in Conflict Resolution. She was assistant for the Coordination of the bachelor degree at the Institute for Political Studies where she developed and implemented marketing and communications strategies, promoted the degree in high schools and organized the Institute's open day. Currently, she is enrolled in a PhD in Political Science and International Relations at the same Institute, is working in CIEP (the Research Centre of the Institute for Political Studies), where she earned a Research Scholarship, and is collaborating as Research Assistant for Professor Aili Tripp from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in her research: "War, Revolution and the Expansion of Women's Citizenship".